We were honored to name this rose in celebration of the Royal Wedding of Prince William and the Duchess of Cambridge, which was held on April 29th, 2011 at Westminster Abbey

David Austin

Prince William and Kate Middleton were married in a beautiful ceremony at Westminster Abbey in London on April 29, 2011 (Fig. 1, 3, 5, 10). Since then, the couple has shared a number of sweet moments together during official royal appearances and have become parents to three children. They welcomed Prince George in 2013, Princess Charlotte in 2015, and Prince Louis in April 2018.

English breeder David Austin in 2011 (Fig. 2, 4, 9).

TOPICAL ISSUES OF SCIENCE AND PRACTICE

The couple were watched by 2,000 friends, family and dignitaries inside the abbey (Fig. 3, 7), and an estimated 2 billion people around the world (see video [26].)

Fig. 5. The Royal Wedding (2011).

The Prince, wearing the red tunic of an Irish Guards colonel, and his bride, who wore a gown by Sarah Burton, repeated their vows as led by the Archbishop the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Most Reverend Rowan Williams (Fig. 3, 10).

Catherine Middleton chose a white strapless satin gown with detailing around the waist for the evening wedding reception, which was held at Buckingham Palace. Some of the lace on her dress was old, her diamond earrings were a new gift from her parents, her tiara was on loan from the queen, and Sarah Burton of Alexander McQueen sewed a blue ribbon inside her dress (Fig. 3, 5, 7, 8; 18).

Burton designed the bottom of the dress to resemble an opening flower (Fig. 7). To create the elaborate applique on the bodice, the Royal School of Needlework cut out floral patterns from long lengths of lace and then stitched them onto silk tulle.

Fig. 6. The lace featured symbolic flowers.

Fig. 7. The wedding dress.

Fig. 8. The tiara.

TOPICAL ISSUES OF SCIENCE AND PRACTICE

The design incorporated roses, thistles, and shamrocks, which traditionally represent England, Scotland, and Ireland, respectively (Fig. 6, 7). To keep the lace and threads pristine, dressmakers washed their hands every thirty minutes and renewed their needles every three hours [24].

The Queen provided the tiara (Fig. 8). The delicate sparkler includes nearly 1,000 diamonds with one large, central gemstone. The diamond tiara is the 1936 Cartier halo.

The bride's wedding ring was made from Welsh gold by Wartski, an upscale jeweler and antiques firm located in Mayfair. The ring was made from a nugget of Welsh gold given to the couple by the Queen. There was a brief moment of anxiety as the ring seemed a tad challenging to slip onto the bride's finger (Fig. 10).

Her bouquet was all white, with lily of the valley, myrtle, sweet william and hyacinth [25] (Fig. 3; 18).

Honouring the Royal Wedding while Will and Kate exchanged traditional wedding vows from the Book of Common Prayer (see [video \[16\]](#)), they made one slight tweak – they removed the word "obey." The first royal bride to drop the word was William's late mother, Princess Diana, who omitted it when she married Prince Charles in 1981.

Fig. 9. The buds of William & Catherine Rose. Fig. 10. The Royal Wedding Vows.

The royal wedding vows of Prince William and Catherine Middleton followed a rigid script of words and rituals based on the traditional Anglican wedding ceremony prescribed in the Book of Common Prayer. The Archbishop of Canterbury, chief clergyman for the Church of England, officiated the solemn event. In the same manner as Princess Diana before here, Catherine left out the vow to "obey" her husband [16],

Check out their wedding vows we can read below:

Archbishop: "William Arthur Philip Louis, wilt thou have this woman to thy wedded wife to live together according to God's law in the holy estate of matrimony? Wilt thou love her, comfort her, honor and keep her, in sickness and in health; and, forsaking all other, keep thee only unto her, so long as ye both shall live?"

Prince William: "I will."

Archbishop to Catherine: "Catherine Elizabeth, wilt thou have this man to thy wedded husband, to live together according to God's law in the holy estate of matrimony? Wilt thou love him, comfort him, honor and keep him, in sickness and in health; and, forsaking all other, keep thee only unto him, so long as ye both shall live?"

TOPICAL ISSUES OF SCIENCE AND PRACTICE

Kate Middleton: "I will."

Archbishop: "Who giveth this woman to be married to this man?"

PW: "I, William Arthur Philip Louis, take thee, Catherine Elizabeth to my wedded wife, to have and to hold from this day forward, for better, for worse; for richer, for poorer; in sickness and in health; to love and to cherish, till death us do part, according to God's holy law; and thereto I give thee my troth."

KM: "I, Catherine Elizabeth, take thee, William Arthur Philip Louis, to my wedded husband, to have and to hold from this day forward, for better, for worse; for richer, for poorer; in sickness and in health; to love and to cherish, till death us do part, according to God's holy law; and thereto I give thee my troth."

Archbishop: "Bless, O Lord, this ring, and grant that he who gives it and she who shall wear it may remain faithful to each other, and abide in thy peace and favor, and live together in love until their lives' end. Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen."

PW: "With this ring I thee wed; with my body I thee honor; and all my worldly goods with thee I share: in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen."

Archbishop: "Let us pray. O Eternal God, Creator, and Preserver of all mankind, giver of all spiritual grace, the author of everlasting life: send thy blessing upon these thy servants, this man and this woman, whom we bless in thy name; that, living faithfully together, they may surely perform and keep the vow and covenant betwixt them made, whereof this ring given and received is a token and pledge; and may ever remain in perfect love and peace together, and live according to thy laws; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen. Those whom God hath joined together let no man put asunder. For as much as William and Catherine have consented together in holy wedlock, and have witnessed the same before God and this company, and thereto have given and pledged their troth either to other, and have declared the same by giving and receiving of a ring, and by joining of hands; I pronounce that they be man and wife together, in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Amen. God the Father, God the Son, God the Holy Ghost, bless, preserve, and keep you; the Lord mercifully with his favor look upon you; and so fill you with all spiritual benediction and grace, that ye may so live together in this life, that in the world to come ye may have life everlasting. Amen" [5].

The Duke and Duchess of Cambridge, who are now the proud parents to three children Prince George, Princess Charlotte and Prince Louis (Fig. 13), met at the University of St Andrews in 2001 (Fig. 14, 15). They both lived at St Salvator's Hall residence, but it wasn't until the following year in 2002 that a spark grew. It's thought that Kate first won William's affections after she took part in a charity fashion show in

For almost 60 years David Austin Roses bred exquisite English Roses. Rosa ‘William and Catherine’(Fig. 2; 4, 9, 16; 19) is a delightful rose, bearing clusters of shallow, cup-shaped fully double flowers with many petals, and a good, myrrh fragrance. Buds open a creamy orange before becoming brilliant white with maturity. Plants are healthy and robust, with an upright habit, and show good resistance to diseases.

Fig. 17. David Austin.

And besides, Rosa ‘William and Catherine’ is ideal for growing in a mixed herbaceous border, but also in a more formal setting such as a rose bed [27].

This rose produces white, shallowly cupped, full petalled blooms with impressive regularity throughout the summer. They have a pure myrrh fragrance. It forms an attractive shrub with bushy, relatively upright growth [5].

The beautiful wedding flowers, from the 20 foot trees in Westminster Abbey to the surprisingly small lily of the valley bridal bouquet, were the creation of Belfast-born florist Shane Connolly. The west London-based florist holds a Royal Warrant awarded to him by the Prince of Wales in 2006, marking him as the official supplier of flowers for royal events. He runs Shane Connolly Flowers with business partner Jamie Marlar. For the Royal Wedding he selected flowers from Windsor Great Park including blossoms, azaleas, rhododendron, euphorbias, beech, wisteria and lilac. But most striking of all were the eight 20ft-high trees dominated the nave [18].

English Field Maples had been installed in the historic church to create a 'Living Avenue' under which guests walked to their seats (Fig. 25). English Field Maples are a native tree (Fig. 24), whose wood is favoured for making harps. In medieval times it was used to fashion loving cups and its distinctive leaf shape was carved on many English cathedrals of the time. In the language of flowers it symbolises humility and reserve – not a word that necessarily applies to Kate's extravagant floral arrangements [7; 21].

Fig. 24. Westminster Abbey.

Fig. 25. A "Living Avenue" at Abbey.

Two pyramid-shaped ornamental Hornbeams were also delivered and were being used to create a leafy 'frame' around the choir. Hornbeam, also known as Ironwood, are found in some of the country's most ancient woodland. It represents resilience as it has one of the hardest wood of all trees and is almost impossible to damage.

The rest of the historic Abbey was bedecked in armfuls of cream and white flowers including blossoms, azaleas, rhododendrons, euphorbias, beech, wisteria, lilac – and even Chinese gooseberry (actinidia) which has distinctive tear-shaped, white-splashed leaves. "The symbolism means a lot to (Kate) and the sourcing has been hugely important," said Connolly (who worked with the Middleton's Bucklebury family florist Emma Sampson on the event) revealed that the trees lining the aisle at the abbey were six English Field Maples and two Hornbeams. The flowers planned for the abbey decorations could provide some clues, though. Among the varieties: Azaleas, the Chinese symbol of femininity, lilacs, which represent first love, rhododendron and wisteria. "One of the things that has been very important to Catherine is the meanings of flowers and the language of flowers," said Connolly. "We've tried, especially in the wedding bouquets, to make beautiful stories." [7; 17].

And so throughout the United Kingdom, citizens were given the day off to celebrate. The offer extended to British territories like Bermuda, Turks and Caicos, and the Falkland Islands.

Prince William is the second in line to the British throne, and when Kate Middleton stepped out of the Queen's vintage Rolls Royce onto the carpet leading into Westminster Abbey, she also stepped into an image that captivated the world [25].

Hundreds of thousands lined the streets to watch the couple's carriage procession (Fig. 26, 30, 31) and the Royal wedding balcony kiss (Fig. 27).

Immediately after the announcement of Prince William and Kate Middleton's Royal Wedding, manufacturers from all over the world started to sell a huge range of products (Fig. 33). In general, all these items can be classified in two categories: souvenirs and memorabilia [8].

To sum up, since their fairytale royal wedding in 2011, Prince William and Kate have grown in popularity. Now, their love story has been immortalised on a stunning set of four commemorative strikes, minted in the highest quality 'proof' and preciously layered with 24-carat gold. Two strikes in the collection are hand-set with Javan blue sapphires and the other two are finished with highly sought-after colour detailing. Strictly limited to only 9,999 complete collections worldwide, the 'William and Kate Royal Wedding' commemorative strike set is available exclusively from Windsor Mint [29], Fig. 34.
